Internal Documentation
Purpose

- The writer needs to get the reader quickly and easily to the source of the information.
Process

- Use internal documentation in the draft
  - In the wording of the paragraph (Signal phrase)
  - At the end of the information (Parenthetical Citation)
  - wording (Axelrod and Cooper 645).
- Present full bibliographic information on the Works Cited page.
  - EBSCOhost, search.ebscohost.com/login.aspx?direct=true&db=aph&AN=6610019&site=ehost-live
Worded into the paragraph

- Make the source clear in the wording
- The page number in parentheses
- (Axelrod and Cooper 645-649).
According to Alison Weir in “Henry’s Queens,” Henry VIII had lost interest in his first wife, Katherine, “by 1522,” and while Henry “still paid her every courtesy and undoubtedly retained an affection for her,” he began to look for reasons to invalidate his first marriage. By 1526, Henry had fallen “in love with Anne Boleyn.”
At the end of the information

- Last name of author
- Title if author not given
- Page numbers
- All in parentheses
- (Axelrod and Cooper 645-649).
After the information

- Henry VIII had lost interest in his first wife, Katherine, “by 1522,” and while Henry “still paid her every courtesy and undoubtedly retained an affection for her,” he began to look for reasons to invalidate his first marriage. By 1526, Henry had fallen “in love with Anne Boleyn” (Weir).